ABOUT

Adrienne Moss focuses her practice on general litigation defense, insurance defense, premises liability defense, products liability defense, and transportation defense. After graduating from law school and passing the California Bar in 2017, she began her civil litigation work focusing on a variety of defense cases – transportation defense, premises liability defense, governmental litigation defense, products liability defense and employment litigation. In 2019, she moved her practice to Utah.

Adrienne earned her law degree from Southwestern Law School, where she was honored with a CALI Excellence for the Future Award in national security law and served as the Alumni Relations Chair for the Women's Law Society. She received her undergraduate degree in political science from the University of California San Diego.

In her free time, she enjoys traveling and spending time with her husband and dog.
